

What's your employees' price?

Of employees would sell their company's data for the right price

Types of business data people are willing to sell:

Financial

Product

Customer

Employee

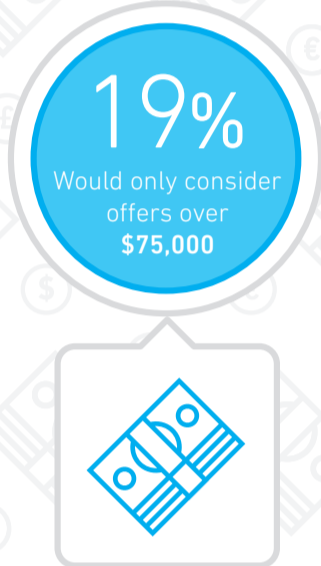

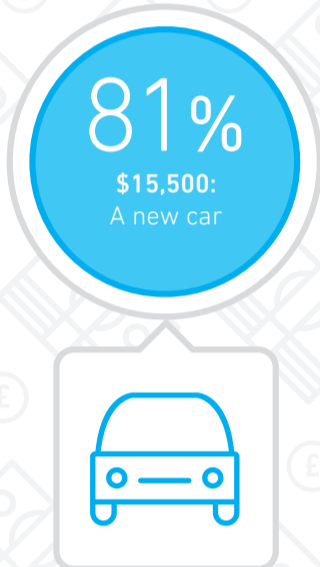

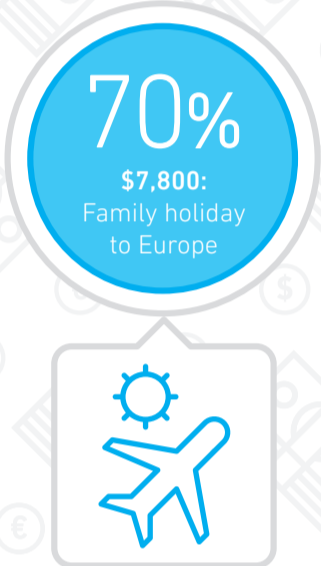

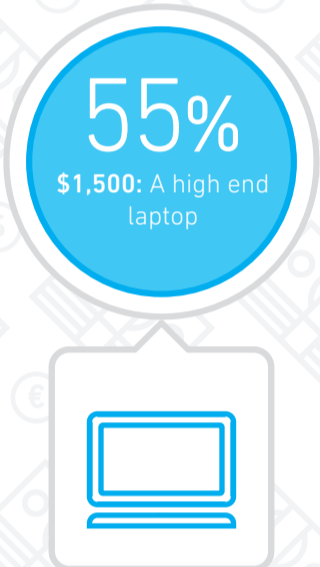

Supply chain

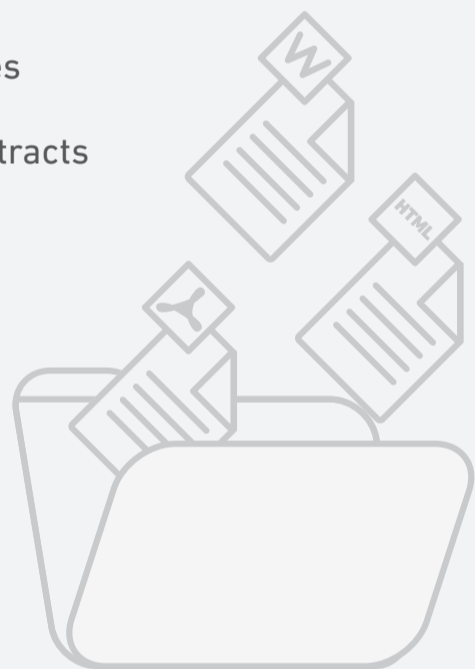

Transactional

Those willing to sell financial data would accept offers of

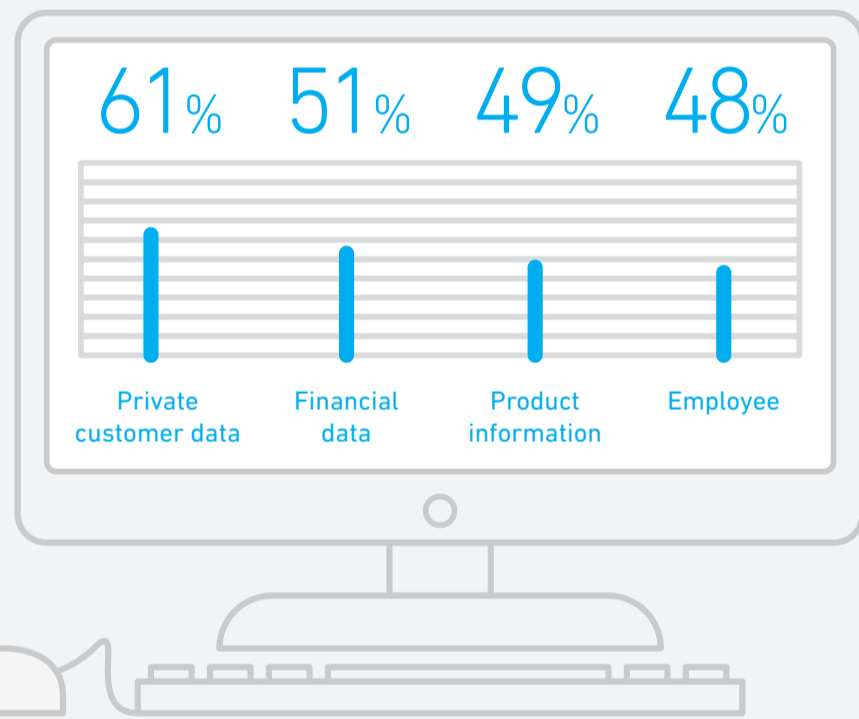

Reasons people might want your company data

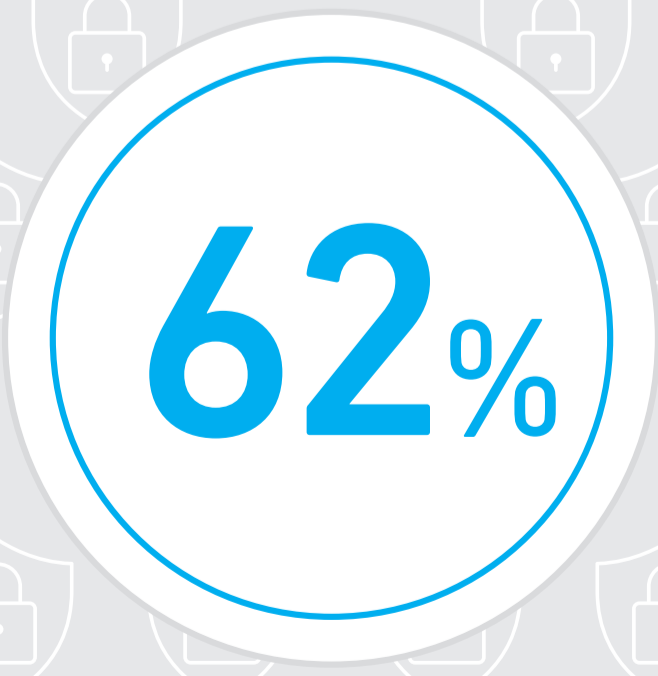

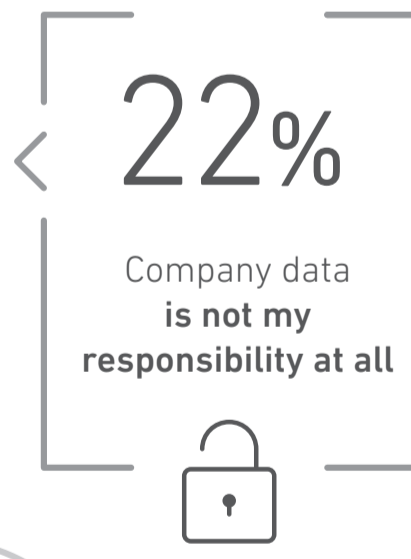

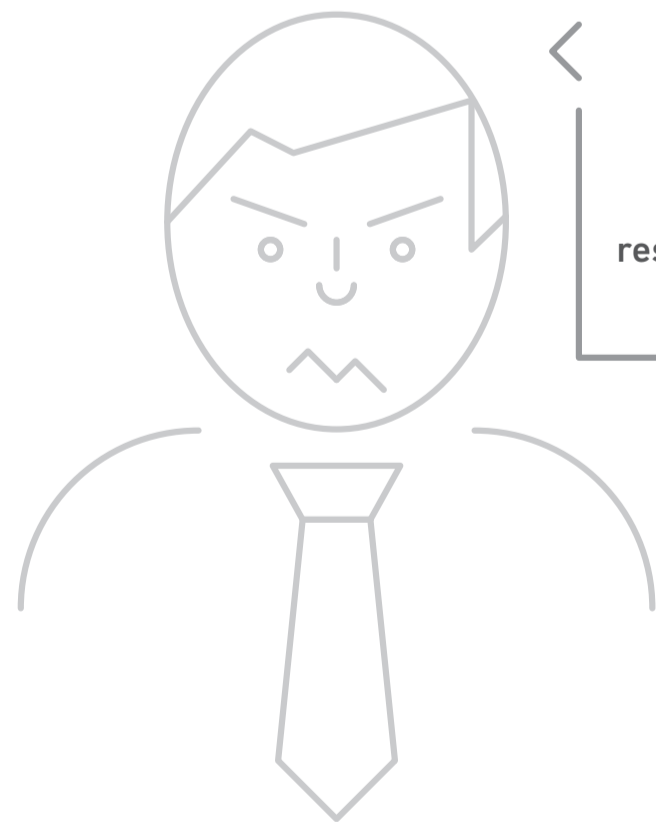

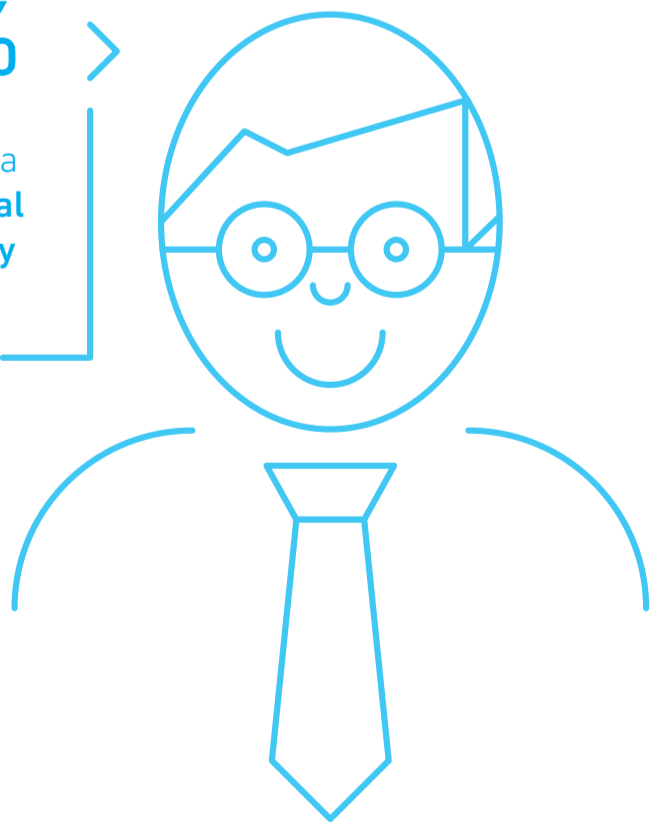

- Steal money from company bank account
- Blackmail senior employees
- Undercut on upcoming contracts
- Steal intellectual property
- Sell it to competitors
- Embarrass the company

% of employees with easy access to critical company data

Attitudes to data security

Information security professionals who think employees don't care enough about security to change behavior